PAGE 2 – Sculpturesite Gallery is MOVING! –Bay Area’s premier sculpture gallery is moving to Glen Ellen

Sonoma, CA – We are delighted to announce that Sculpturesite Gallery is moving to the lovely small town of Glen Ellen. Blending the historical (the oldest building in the Sonoma Valley is next door!) with the contemporary, our truly original indoor gallery is set in a series of six large concrete vats that were used by a distillery, enhanced by modern glass doors and natural wood accents. We will also continue to have display areas for our outdoor sculpture throughout the beautiful grounds of Jack London Village, with decks overlooking year-round Sonoma Creek and bordering the Sonoma Valley Regional Park. There are three well regarded restaurants on site, so plan on enjoying a delicious dinner after exploring the new Sculpturesite!

The doors are still open at Cornerstone Sonoma through April 26th and we will re-open in Glen Ellen on May 15th. We will also still be available by email and through our website every day during the transition period, with hundreds of sculptures still available online.

About Sculpturesite Gallery

Sculpturesite Gallery is Northern California’s only gallery dedicated entirely to modern and contemporary fine art sculpture, representing over fifty mid-career to internationally renowned artists. Set against the beautiful backdrop of Sonoma Wine Country, the gallery was originally founded as A New Leaf Gallery in Berkeley in 1990. 2005 was a transformative year, marking the move of A New Leaf Gallery to Sonoma and the creation of Sculpturesite Gallery in San Francisco. In 2010, the galleries consolidated to form a new leaf gallery | sculpturesite as the sole venue dedicated exclusively to fine art sculpture in the region.

After 10 years at Cornerstone Sonoma, we are excited to initiate this new stage in the gallery’s trajectory with our move to Glen Ellen and the return to our focused name: Sculpturesite Gallery. Also, 2015 is a milestone year in which we will be celebrating 25 years as a sculpture gallery. Stay tuned for detailed announcements!
